Vision and Audience

For over three decades, the award-winning Inuit Art Quarterly has been dedicated to the advancement and appreciation of Inuit and circumpolar Indigenous arts. As the sole publication focused on the arts and artists of Inuit Nunangat, we deliver this important perspective to a global audience by way of a beautifully produced, archival quality magazine. Our readers are inquisitive, passionate and loyal. They regularly share with us their enthusiasm for the publication and the artists we feature.

The IAQ is unique in its ability to bring you into the heart of conversation and the community. We support robust and thoughtful writing by Inuit and other Indigenous writers, including cultivating and mentoring emerging talent. For over three decades, we have been at the forefront of the field bringing to light new and notable artists and sharing their voices and culture.

The Inuit Art Quarterly brings the best of Inuit art to world.

The Water Issue (Summer 2020)

The Summer 2020 issue of the Inuit Art Quarterly (release June 15, 2020) celebrates the foundational relationship that Inuit share with water in its many forms, and explores how this relationship is expressed through the many media that encompass Inuit artistic practice. Our keystone Feature considers the imagery and influence of the umait sculptures of Joe Talirunili (1893-1976), or “Joe Boats,” and how these now-iconic sculptures of boats have become among the most sought-after works from the Arctic. This issue also features an interview between two photographers, Robert Kautauk and Eldred Allen, famous for their striking aerial photographs of the North’s arctic scenes from hunting and animal migration to ice floes, riverways and icebergs. And our Portfolio considers the materials that come from the depths that have been central to Inuit art-making, such as baleen, ivory, bone and seal skin, featuring artists both established and emerging across Inuit Nunangat. These vital relationships to water sources across Inuit Nunangat are changing as the stability of sea ice changes and dependence on marine life shifts while water quality and access remain challenging issues. Fundamental, elemental and transformational this issue examines how water flows through Inuit life, art and storytelling.

Quick Summary
The Inuit Art Quarterly’s Summer 2020 issue (release June 15, 2020) celebrates the longstanding, intimate relationship that Inuit share with water, and explores how this relationship is expressed in Inuit artistic practice. Ranging from an expansive Portfolio on materials derived from marine animals, like baleen, bone and ivory to a feature on why Joe Talirunili’s “Joe Boats” are among the most valued pieces of Circumpolar art, this issue examines how water flows through Inuit life, art and storytelling.

- An in-depth feature on the boat carvings of Joe Talirunii and why they are among the most valued pieces of Inuit art today.
- A call-and-response artist project by celebrated photographers Robert Kautauk and Eldred Allen.
- A multi-voiced Portfolio that celebrates the art derived from the materials provided by bodies of water.
- Legacy on the inventive materials—from ivory to melted vinyl records and soap—that artists have used for inlays in their sculptures.
- A behind the scenes look at the curatorial decisions behind Inuuqatikka: My Dear Relations, a retrospective of the works of the Arnait Video Productions, the world’s leading women-centered Inuit filmmaking collective at the Agnes Etherington Art Centre.

Policies and Terms

Acceptance of any advertisement in Inuit Art Quarterly is at the sole discretion of the publisher. All copy and graphics are subject to the publisher’s approval.

Contracts
The publisher is not bound by any conditions, printed or otherwise, on contract or copy instructions when such conditions conflict with the rate card or the publisher’s policies. Contracts must be completed within one year (four issues). In the case of a lawsuit by any party against or enjoining Inuit Art Quarterly, relating to a given advertisement (including, but not limited to, libel, copyright infringement, defamation of character or plagiarism), the given advertiser and/or its advertising agency shall fully indemnify and save harmless Inuit Art Quarterly and the Inuit Art Foundation from all costs, damages and demands.

Terms
Advertisers and their agencies have dual liability to the publisher in the event of non-payment for advertising. The agency is responsible for the client, and vice versa, notwithstanding any statements to the contrary on agency or advertiser insertion orders or contracts.

Cancellation
Cancellations must be received by Inuit Art Quarterly in writing an advertiser must cancel their ad by space closing date. Rates that are based on a frequency schedule are subject to short rates if the full schedule is not complete.

Account Payment
Inuit Art Quarterly invoices are payable within 30 days from the date of the invoice. Overdue accounts will be subject to a service charge of 2% per month commencing 30 days from the date of the invoice until paid. When a cheque or a pre-authorized debit is returned unpaid due to non-sufficient funds (NSF), an NSF fee of $45 is charged.

Errors
In the event of a material error in the advertisement that is the fault of Inuit Art Quarterly, the maximum liability of the magazine is limited to the space charge for that issue. In this event, the contract will be extended for one issue and the total contract price will remain the same.
